

Hoosier Life Survey Politics Graphic

This red-and-white graphic starts with black and red, centered text: "Hoosiers support climate-resilience policies regardless of political leaning"

To the left of the headline is the IU trident.

Below that, in black text, it reads: "A recent statewide survey by Indiana University researchers shows that a majority of Indiana Republicans, Democrats, and Independents support policies to make the state more resilient to extreme weather and other impacts related to climate change. Policies that received at least 60 percent support among all political affiliations include:"

Next are graphic images to represent four categories. Each icon is red. The text to the right of each icon is black.

The categories are:

- Expand access to public transportation to reduce CO2 emissions
- Plant more trees on town streets to reduce impacts of flooding and heatwaves
- Replace some paved areas with water-absorbent landscape
- Offer public funding to help residents install solar panels
